[REDACTED] February 17 at 10:23am

I had forgotten about the time that Josh left the boys home alone. [REDACTED] was 1 and [REDACTED] was 3. Susan had left for work riding her bike and Josh was to bring the kids to daycare. He decided after she left that the boys were sick and Susan needed to come home. She hadn't gotten to work yet, so he just went out and got in the van a drove off left the boys in the house alone. He caught up to Susan and she was almost to work, Got her and her bike and took her back home. She was furious! When they got back to the house it had been approximately 35 minutes. She went into the house and the boys were crying and screaming and they just clung to her for the day. She was so angry at Josh when she told me about it. I even told him the next day he made a bad choice and he should never leave the boys home alone at that age. His reply was that it was only going to be a few minutes. My reply was what if you got in a car crash on your way. He said well the kids would have been safe. He just couldn't see that he did the wrong thing. It wasn't to much after that we came up with a plan and the boys were brought to me in their PJ's and Josh took Susan to work.
