Dear Steve:

I hope this finds you as well as you can be, given the circumstances.

I am continuing to cover the case of your daughter-in-law, Susan Powell, as the search for her continues. I wanted to reach out to you again to see if you have any comments about her as the third anniversary of her disappearance approaches, and as her family and friends celebrate what would have been her 31st birthday this week.

Are you still hopeful that she will be found?

Your trial focused on information that detailed your feelings for Susan. Do you still have strong feelings for her? Are you hopeful that you could have a relationship with her in the future if it is the case that she is alive?

Has your opinion at all changed about your son Josh's involvement in his wife's disappearance following his death last winter, or do you maintain that he was innocent?

How are you coping with all that has happened in the past year?

What are your plans for starting anew once you are released this spring?

Sincerely,
