

Dave, if you pull up this area in google maps you can easily see all these holes. They appear to have been dug by back hoe. They're about ten feet long, six feet deep, and three feet across. In addition to the the three below, there is a fourth a little further to the west, and one before you even cross the tracks onto the property to the east.

The property owner is [REDACTED] and I spoke to him yesterday. There are gates across the tracks to enter the property, but you can just open them. They are not locked, and access to the property has never been controlled since you can't really hurt the land any. Get a hold of me at anytime if you need to speak to him. He's a pot head flake though.

As you enter the property across the tracks and through the gate, the first hole you come to is the one at the guy showed us as being the one he is 99.9% sure was freshly disturbed. But, I think you might as well hit the whole area in case he pushed her out of the van to just die of exposure. There is a sheep herder out there named [REDACTED]. He has some dogs and horses, but he appears harmless. He said that people come out there all the time at night with the "automatic" guns to shoot coyotes and whatever.

I got a call from a pretty well connected [REDACTED] last night who has further info. He stated that he went back out a few days after their initial contact with the van to steal, I mean find some copper wire (we know this is fact as Alva and Tony saw [REDACTED] when he was getting arrested by Tooele for "finding" copper wire in the same area). He states that there were actually some footprints at this time that lead away from where he originally saw the van. He said they were too small to be from a male. I'm going to try and interview him to find out exactly where they went. I'll update you as soon as I know just in case Joshua booted her out of the van to die in the elements.

From: Alva Davis
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 2010 3:57 PM
To: David Greco; Max Cook
Cc: Darrell Dain; Robert Bobrowski
Subject: Hole with GPS coordinates

Hi guys,

Here is a pdf with the location of the holes we went out and looked at. You have to go to the train tracks in Faust, then take the road on the east side of the train tracks and head south, approximately 5 miles south.

The first hole is marked with the coordinates. The other two are about .2 miles further west along the road.

Alva Davis - Detective
Special Victims Unit
West Valley City Police Department
(801) 963-3435 Desk
(801) 963-3332 Fax

